Pepperdine University - School of Public Policy

Pepperdine University’s School of Public Policy is built on a distinctive philosophy of nurturing leaders to use the tools of analysis and policy design to effect successful implementation and real change. This requires critical insights that only a broad exposure to great ideas, courageous thinkers, and extraordinary leaders can encourage. It is based on the conviction that an elevated and elevating culture, as well as personal moral certainties, are the valid concern of higher education and as important as the tools of analysis. This unique perspective is reflected in the curriculum and unashamedlydifferentiates it from most other public policy programs.

Post-Baccalaureate Program in Psychology and Social Behavior

The Department of Psychology and Social Behavior at the University of California, Irvine is now offering a Post-Baccalaureate Program!

Program Overview: UCI’s Post-Baccalaureate Program in Psychology and Social Behavior is a certificate program that combines psychology coursework with research and/or internship experience. It is designed for people who:

- Have a bachelor’s degree (in any discipline) and
- Are interested in a psychology-related graduate program, career development, or career change and
- Could benefit from additional coursework, research and/or hands-on work experience in psychology.

Those interested in a Doctoral-level or Master’s degree programs in a range of areas of psychology (including clinical/counseling psychology, social/personality psychology, developmental psychology, health psychology, psychology & the law, and school psychology) or health (e.g., public health, medical school) can strengthen their graduate school applications by completing our program, which offers an individualized course of study based on each person’s qualifications and goals.

Program Description: The program consists of eight courses, which may include lower- and upper-division lectures, small seminars (including advanced statistics and research methods), hands-on research lab courses, and/or hands-on internship courses. The program can be completed at the student’s own pace, in as little as 6 months or in as many as 24 months, depending upon one’s schedule and preferences. A faculty advisor will work closely with students to help plan courses and provide guidance on obtaining letters of recommendation, choosing graduate programs, writing personal statements, and applying for jobs. In addition, students will have the opportunity to attend our weekly departmental colloquia and other special events and to interact with our community of faculty, researchers, and graduate students.

Applications: Applicants are accepted on a quarterly basis. For more information, please visit: http://psb.soceco.uci.edu/content/post-baccalaureate-program
